Call for Papers for the 24th Annual Conference
October 28-30, 2017 | Dallas, Texas

Peering into the Future of Youth Ministry: Equipping Students with the Competencies for the Next 15 Years of Youth Ministry Leadership

We encourage the submission of proposals for presentations at this year’s AYME Conference. Given our interdisciplinary nature and desire to continue to encourage this strength, we invite you to submit a proposal from your context and from your research base, be that theological, historical, philosophical, quantitative, qualitative, or other research traditions.

We are especially interested in papers which explore how to equip students with competencies to be competent practitioners in the future field of youth ministry. This is a wonderful opportunity for your work to stimulate the thinking of others in the field while receiving valuable feedback from colleagues.

Paper presentations will be featured in 50-minute time slots.

Please submit 200 word proposals to Richelle White (richellebwhite@gmail.com) AND (ongoing@vibrantfaith.org). Send submissions no later than July 1, 2017. Notifications of acceptance will be emailed to authors near the end of July, providing presenters with ample preparation time.

*You must indicate in your proposal what kind of research you are doing, and whether this research is completed or currently in process. If your research is in process, please indicate the anticipated level of completion by the conference dates.

*All accepted papers MUST BE SUBMITTED electronically in full NO LATER THAN SEPTEMBER 15, 2017. They need to be posted for reading on the AYME website prior to the conference. Any papers not received by the due date may not be presented at the conference. Seriously consider this when applying.

Proposal Deadline: July 1, 2017
